Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Saturday 27 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Overnight fog and low cloud for some. Sunday generally fine.

This Evening and Tonight:
Continuing dry. Many areas keeping clear skies with a slight frost and patchy mist or fog. Low cloud and fog may be more widespread in parts of western Scotland, Northern Ireland, east and southeast England. Light winds for most.

Sunday:
Staying dry with some sunshine for many, after a cloudy or foggy start in places, especially southeastern and northwestern areas. Some eastern coasts of England probably staying grey and chilly.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Central and eastern areas seeing mist, low cloud, and some fog, clearing slowly each day. Elsewhere, mainly fine with some sunshine and night frost. A few showers probably developing Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.